APPELLATE LAW

At Schwartz Sladkus Reich Greenberg Atlas LLP (SSRGA), a law firm with offices in Boca Raton and New York, serving clients takes on a holistic approach.

"We have the ability to not just focus on the procedure, which we know very well, but also figure out what other types of solutions might benefit the client," says Robin I. Bresky, Florida Managing Partner. "We really care about the client and we want to make sure the legal problems they're having get addressed in the right way."

That may mean offering practical solutions through in-house experts or finding a creative solution beyond the confines of the law firm. But given the breadth of knowledge and experience at SSRGA, it's not uncommon to find those solutions within.

After all, the firm handles civil, family law and criminal appeals; community association law; civil litigation; matrimonial law; corporate transactions; and wills, trusts and estates.

SSRGA seeks not only to serve longtime Florida residents, but also those from New York who are moving to the Sunshine State.

"It's great synergy because we have so many clients moving down from New York who have needs in both places," Bresky says. "So, it's very beneficial to be able to offer our expertise to Florida and new-to-Florida residents."

Given that SSRGA has an office in Florida and New York, attorneys are well-versed in how laws work in both locations, which can vary greatly from one another. This is key for any number of issues, from something as seemingly simple as a will to something as complex as litigation.

"We want to be the place they come for all of their legal needs and that's why we're growing our practice areas," Bresky says. "We know the lay of the land in the legal community. We can get answers locally and across the country."
